

Do you enjoy reading?

COMMUNITY BOOK GROUP

READING EMOTIONS: LOVE IN FICTION

Would you like to discuss the books you read?
Are you interested in how men's and women's attitudes to love and family relationships have changed over the last three hundred years?

You are invited to join our community book group. Membership is open to men and women of all ages. The group is run by Sally Holloway and Jane Mackelworth, from the Queen Mary Centre for the History of the Emotions. We will be reading neglected works on love and relationships written by British women c. 1750-1950.

Meetings will take place at the Bromley by Bow centre in east London, one Friday each month 6-7.30pm, from April to September 2015. Books and refreshments will be provided free of charge.

If you would like to join, or have friends, family or neighbours in London who may be interested in participating, please email

communitybookgroup@outlook.com

bromley by bow centre

Centre for Public Engagement

Centre for the History of the Emotions